When her husband died, Bea thought she would never go through anything harder. For more than 50 years, they experienced parenthood, military life and, finally, debilitating illness together.

That was before a serious car accident showed Bea how much harder her life could get. She sustained a brain injury and underwent months of rehabilitation. Her limited mobility and vision made holding a job challenging. She could barely remember to pay bills. She fell into debt and got behind on her taxes.

After her accident, Bea needed support. Bea's friends suggested she find help through Lutheran Social Service of Minnesota (LSS). Bea's late husband's veteran status meant that she was eligible to utilize LSS' Veterans C.O.R.E. (Counseling and Case Management, Outreach, Referral, and Education), a collection of wellness services that work together to empower veterans and their immediate families to change their life’s difficult circumstances.

Bea found services that helped her get back on top of her life. With the help of an LSS certified financial counselor, Bea created a plan to pay off her debt. With the help of her therapist, Bea began to understand and cope with the emotional effects of both her accident and the loss of her husband. “He saved me,” Bea said of her therapist. “The support that I received brought me from hopeless to hopeful.”
